

- 26 -

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus for slowing the rise of air bubbles for large-scale applications such as bubble curtains for suppressing noise in marine seismic surveys. Bubble rise time is increased by a chemical additive which either retards bubble coalescence or produces smaller bubbles through wetting agent properties, or a combination of both.